The University of Evansville is a private, fully-accredited university affiliated with The United Methodist Church. The University offers liberal arts and professional education in over 60 academic areas and a full range of degree programs including bachelor's and master's degrees, two-year associate degrees, specialized certification programs and continuing education classes. Approximately 7,200 students attend classes on the University's 75-acre campus in residential Evansville and the overseas branch campus at Harlaxton College in Grantham, England.

The department of music at the University of Evansville has been a fully accredited member of the National Association of Schools of Music since 1948. The 18 full-time and six part-time music faculty members offer specialized instruction on every major instrument. Music majors number approximately 130. Program offerings include undergraduate degrees in music education, performance, liberal arts, music therapy, music management and music and associated studies and Master of Music degrees in performance, music education and church music.

Students participate in a wide array of ensembles including Band, Orchestra, Choir, Choral-Ayres, Jazz Ensembles, Percussion Ensemble, Marching Band, Pep Band as well as small chamber music groups. Outstanding students perform in the Evansville Philharmonic and Owensboro Symphony Orchestras and the Savoyards, an Evansville based Gilbert and Sullivan company.

In recent years, faculty soloists and ensembles have performed in Carnegie Recital Hall in New York, Kennedy Center in Washington, The Chicago Public Library Recital Series, the Brooklyn Museum of Art, in England, South America, at the Queen Elisabeth competition in Belgium, the Interlochen Arts Academy and with the Indianapolis Symphony, Erie Symphony, Evansville Philharmonic, Owensboro Symphony and other educational institutions.
